

The Task at Hand

We must strengthen project management to ensure that we are getting the most for the taxpayers' dollar. We must implement the best project management practices of the public and private sectors. For every project, we must better define what we are trying to accomplish, by when, and how we will achieve it. These mechanisms are essential for reducing costs, improving operational and safety performance, and ensuring accountability.